

Education, Health and Well-being in Schools from an International Perspective Symposium

October 13(Fri), 2017 17:00~18:40

Canopy Hall (Room 51)
Graduate School of Human Science, Osaka University

Part 1: 17:00-17:50

Education, Health and Well-being in Schools from an International Perspective

Dr Didier Jourdan

JSPS Fellow

Visiting professor, Osaka University

Professor, University of Clermont-Avergne

This presentation aims at offering an overview of the situation of health education and health promotion in schools in different countries. Professor Jourdan will first analyse what happens to health when it becomes a subject area in schools. He will describe the factors governing the way in which health promotion approaches/curriculum/programs are implemented and finally put the emphasis the challenge of capacity building.

Critical perspectives on Health Education

Dr. Jacqueline Descarpentries

Professor, University of Lille 3

Professor, University of Paris 8

Professor Descarpentries' lecture will refer to the theories of two French researchers Michel Foucault and Georges Canguilhem. She will define the key concepts of Foucault's philosophy (discourse, knowledge, power, norms...) and show how these concepts can help exploring and critically discussing the dynamic relations between education and health.

Part II: 18:00-18:40

事前申し込み不要: No registration is required.
講演使用言語・英語: This event will be held in English

Contact

Internationalization of Education and Critical Studies in Transformative Education Lab, Graduate School of Human Sciences
Professor Beverley Yamamoto
Fuyuko Nagarekawa (nagare@hus.Osaka-u.ac.jp)