Dr Bixia Chen

Subtropical Science Field Center
Faculty of Agriculture
University of the Ryukyus

Dr. Bixia Chen is an associate professor at Faculty of Agriculture, University of the Ryukyus, Japan. She has been working on the Fengshui village landscape, and Fengshui trees in Okinawa, Japan, from a comparative perspective with the other regions in East Asia, Mainland China, Hong Kong, and Korea. She is the co-editor of “Traditional Rural Landscapes in Island Topography in East Asia.” She also works on the sacred forests in Okinawa and other Asian regions and coedited with Prof. Chris Coggins the book of “Sacred Forests of Asia: Spiritual Ecology and the Politics of Nature Conservation.” She is also interested in rural tourism and regional development in East Asian Countries, seeking for an appropriate strategy to sustain rural communities and environment.

June 8

Dr Dana Mirsalis

Harvard University
Faculty of Arts and Sciences

Dana Mirsalis received her PhD in East Asian Languages and Civilizations from Harvard University. Her doctoral dissertation explores how the introduction of women to the Jinja Honchō-affiliated Shinto priesthood in 1946 has precipitated the formation of a gendered priesthood.
